Summary

Teacher: Scott Reynolds

(0:04 - 0:35) Introduction to Tour Zero

The class, led by teacher Scott on July 30, 2025, introduces "The Engagement Project, Tour 0: The Land of Nought, A Remnant of Hope," guided by Dr. Del Tackett. The opening lesson addresses the challenges of a world where moral boundaries are dissolving and spiritual confusion prevails. It positions the Engagement Project as a vital resource for Christians seeking purpose, offering a lifeline to understand their role in a transformative spiritual journey.

(0:35 - 1:16) The Clarion Call and the Metanarrative

Tour Zero serves as more than an introduction; it is a clarion call for Christians to recognize their place in God's metanarrative. The term "metanarrative" is defined as an overarching story that provides rationale for one's purpose and existence, with the Bible serving as the ultimate example. This lesson emphasizes the importance of understanding this narrative to grasp one's role in God's plan and to act as a beacon of hope in a spiritually lost world.

(1:17 - 2:13) The Role of the Remnant in a Lost World

The session highlights the call for Christians to be active participants in God's redemptive plan, tasked with bringing light to a darkened world. The title "The Land of Nought, A Remnant of Hope" is unpacked, with "Nought" symbolizing a world lacking moral or spiritual boundaries, reflective of today's relativistic culture where truth and values are fluid. Despite this bleak landscape, the concept of a "remnant" offers hope—a faithful group chosen to stand firm and reflect God's light.

(2:13 - 3:14) The Five Major Epochs and Cultural Context

Dr. Tackett introduces five key epochs that frame God's metanarrative: creation, fall, redemption, engagement, and restoration. These provide a roadmap for understanding God's plan and the Christian's role within it. The engagement epoch is emphasized as the current phase, where believers are called to actively bring God's kingdom light into the world. The "Land of Nought" is likened to biblical times, specifically referencing Judges 17:6, where people followed their own desires, underscoring the timeless relevance of this spiritual drift.

(3:14 - 4:43) The Royal Vision and Call to Action

A central element of Tour Zero is the "royal vision," a mission for believers to build real relationships within their immediate sphere of influence—referred to as their "Jerusalem" (neighbors, co-workers, friends, and family). This vision involves engaging with grace, wisdom, and truth, being "attractively winsome" to break down barriers and build trust. The focus is on embodying Christ's love through practical, everyday actions rather than overt preaching, emphasizing humility and kindness as means to reflect the gospel.

(4:44 - 5:38) The Remnant of Hope and Intentionality

The concept of the remnant is further explored, defined as a faithful group preserved by God to fulfill His purpose in a faithless world. Christians, as this remnant, are called to stand firm in the Land of Nought with intentionality, courage, and reliance on God's Spirit. Intentionality is highlighted as a deliberate and purposeful approach to living out one's faith, requiring active engagement rather than passivity in response to the world's challenges.

(5:39 - 6:25) Practical Steps for Engagement

Tour Zero provides practical applications, encouraging believers to form small groups for accountability, encouragement, and shared mission in fulfilling the royal vision. Prayer is emphasized as a foundational practice, aligning actions with God's will to ensure they bear eternal fruit. These steps are presented as actionable ways to live out the engagement epoch, making the lesson both inspirational and practical.

(6:26 - 7:44) The Transformative Journey and Hope

The beauty of Tour Zero lies in its ability to inspire without overwhelming, painting a vivid picture of the world's brokenness while igniting hope through God's redemptive plan. It frames everyday choices as significant within the metanarrative, emphasizing faithful, consistent steps over grand gestures. The session reassures that the darkness of the Land of Nought does not have the final word; God's remnant, empowered by His Spirit, carries the light of hope to transform lives and communities.

(7:44 - 8:24) Paradigm Shift and Future Promise

The Engagement Project is described as a paradigm shift, urging believers to see themselves as integral to God's story and to engage the world with purpose and love. Tour Zero sets the stage for the journey ahead, promising practical tools and biblical wisdom to equip Christians in their calling. The session concludes with an invitation to join the remnant, embrace the royal vision, and let God's hope shine through, with the promise of continuing the exploration in the next class.

The Land of Nought, A Remnant of Hope

Introduction to a Transformative Journey

On July 30, 2025, teacher Scott introduced "The Engagement Project, Tour 0: The Land of Nought, A Remnant of Hope," a powerful opening to a series led by Dr. Del Tackett. In a world where moral boundaries blur and spiritual confusion abounds, this lesson offers Christians a lifeline to find purpose and direction. Tour Zero is not just a starting point but a clarion call to embrace our role in God's grand metanarrative, setting the stage for a transformative journey of faith and action.

Understanding the Metanarrative and Our Role

Central to Tour Zero is the concept of the metanarrative—an overarching story that gives purpose and meaning to our existence, with the Bible as its ultimate expression. Dr. Tackett invites believers to see themselves as active participants in God's redemptive plan, tasked with bringing light to a darkened world. The title "The Land of Nought" vividly describes a society devoid of moral or spiritual boundaries, where truth is relative and values are fluid. Yet, within this bleak landscape, the "remnant of hope" emerges—a faithful group called to stand firm and shine brightly, echoing the resilience seen in biblical times (Judges 17:6).

The Five Epochs and the Royal Vision

Dr. Tackett outlines five major epochs—creation, fall, redemption, engagement, and restoration—that frame God's metanarrative and guide believers in understanding their place within it. The engagement epoch, the current phase, calls Christians to actively bring God's kingdom light into the world. This mission is encapsulated in the "royal vision," which urges believers to build authentic relationships within their immediate sphere of influence, or "Jerusalem" (neighbors, co-workers, friends, and family). By engaging with grace, wisdom, and truth, and being "attractively winsome," Christians can break down barriers, build trust, and reflect God's love through practical, everyday actions.

The Call to Be the Remnant

The concept of the remnant is a cornerstone of Tour Zero, portraying Christians as a faithful group preserved by God to fulfill His purpose in a faithless world. This role demands intentionality—deliberate and purposeful action—along with courage and reliance on God's Spirit. Far from passive, the remnant is called to actively carry the light of hope into the Land of Nought, transforming lives and communities through their character and actions. This calling is both a privilege and a responsibility, inspiring believers to live out their faith with boldness and humility.

Practical Steps and the Power of Prayer

Tour Zero doesn't stop at inspiration; it provides practical steps for engagement. Dr. Tackett encourages forming small groups to foster accountability, encouragement, and a shared sense of mission in fulfilling the royal vision. Prayer is highlighted as essential, aligning believers' efforts with God's will to ensure lasting impact. These actionable steps make the lesson accessible, empowering Christians to live out their calling in tangible ways within their immediate circles.

A Hope-Filled Journey Ahead

The beauty of Tour Zero lies in its ability to balance the reality of the world's brokenness with the hope of God's redemptive plan. By framing everyday choices as significant within the metanarrative, it inspires believers to take faithful, consistent steps rather than relying on grand gestures. The Engagement Project is presented as a paradigm shift, challenging Christians to see themselves as integral to God's story and to engage the world with purpose and love. As God's remnant, empowered by His Spirit, believers are invited to carry the hope of Christ into every interaction, with the promise of practical tools and biblical wisdom to come in future sessions.

Conclusion: Stepping into the Engagement Epoch

Tour Zero sets a compelling foundation for the Engagement Project, urging believers to embrace their calling as God's remnant in the Land of Nought. With humility, boldness, and reliance on God's Spirit, Christians are equipped to make a difference, one relationship at a time. As we look forward to the next class, Tour Zero leaves us inspired to join the remnant, embrace the royal vision, and let God's hope shine through us in a world that desperately needs it.
